

GOVERNMENT HAS BEGUN ITS SUIT

SEEKS TO HAVE THE AMERICAN
SUGAR COMPANY DECLARED ILLEGAL.

MAKES MANY CHARGES

American Sugar Refining Company
Defendants in Noted Suit
Filed Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, N. Y., Nov. 28.—Attacking the American Sugar Refining company, commonly known as the sugar trust, as a lawless combination, the federal government today filed a suit for the dissolution of the corporation. The suit, which is brought under the Sherman anti-trust law, is expected to be one of the most important actions of the kind ever undertaken in this country.

The government's petition is a sweeping arraignment of the defendants.

In part, the government alleges that when the sugar combine was formed, it was a lawless combination, and that it has since continued to operate as such.

The government alleges that the combine has monopolized the sugar business, and that it has used unfair methods to acquire and maintain its position.

The government also alleges that the combine has used its power to fix prices, and to discriminate against its competitors.

NEW STATE FAIR CIRCUIT PLANS

American Association Managers Are Discussing Them at Meeting in Chicago Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 28.—Developments of much importance to the future of the large fairs and expositions in the United States and Canada are likely to result from the annual meeting of the American Association of Fairs and Expositions, which began its sessions today at the Auditorium Hotel in this city. For several years past there has been a growing dissatisfaction among several of the large state fair organizations with the dates assigned them and also with the general management. In numerous instances the conflict of dates has proved disastrous financially. As a result it is probable that a complete reorganization of the fair circuits will be made, with a view to avoiding unnecessary conflict of dates and also to make the "jump" as short as possible.

The greatest dissatisfaction is said to exist among the State fair organizations in the Middle West. As a consequence a new circuit for this section is being discussed. The proposed circuit would embrace the big fair of the Province of Ontario, the Michigan State fair at Detroit, the Ohio State fair at Columbus, the Indiana State fair at Indianapolis, the Kentucky State fair at Louisville, and the Tennessee State fair at Nashville.

OREGON BOOSTERS MEETING AT SALEM

Publicity Methods and Community
Advertising Are the Principal
Topics of Discussion.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Salem, Ore., Nov. 28.—Oregon's capital city is entertaining for three days a hundred or more of the most active "boosters" for the state welfare. The occasion is the annual meeting of the Oregon Development League, a federation of the various commercial bodies of the state engaged in the promotion of their respective localities. Publicity methods and community advertising are to be the principal topics of discussion. Newspaper men, advertising heads of railroad systems and the officers of commercial clubs will discuss the relative merits of the different plans of work.

At the opening sessions today the discussions dealt with the proper organization and management of commercial clubs, so as to avoid friction between members, and accomplished most for the general welfare of the community. Mistakes commonly made in commercial club management occasioned considerable discussion.

Tomorrow the three sessions will be devoted, one each to the discussion of community advertising in Pacific coast publications, community advertising in eastern and national publications, and community advertising by the railroads.

TO HOLD IMPERIAL EXHIBIT IN 1915

Movement on Foot in London to Exhibit Manufacturers of Whole British Empire.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Nov. 28.—A movement has been set on foot for the holding of a large imperial exhibition in London in 1915, for the purpose of showing what can be manufactured and produced within the British empire. The year 1915 is proposed as the date of holding the exhibition, among other reasons, because it is hoped that the next colonial conference will be held in that year, because the Prince of Wales will be celebrating his twenty-first birthday, and further, because it will be the 70th anniversary of the signing of the Magna Charta.

UP FOR A MURDER ON CIRCUS TRAIN

Over a Score of Husbands Must Answer for Shooting of Paul
Williams Near Lexington,
South Carolina.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Lexington, S. C., Nov. 28.—Remarkable for the large number of defendants is the so-called "circus murder case," to be tried at a special term of the Lexington county court which convened today. In all nearly a score of men, including a number of negroes, are to be tried on the charge of having murdered Paul A. Williams early on the morning of October 2, last. The alleged murder of young Williams, who was a freight clerk employed in Columbia and a man of good reputation, occurred on a circus train while the circus was on its way from Columbia to Augusta. On the night of the tragedy, following a performance of the circus in Columbia that day, Williams and a companion, J. C. Woodley, boarded the circus train with the intention of riding to Augusta.

According to the story subsequently told by Woodley, the young man allowed themselves away beneath some canvas on one of the circus wagons. When a short distance on their journey Woodley's attention was attracted to loud and angry conversation and saw part of the circus crew coming toward the car on which the young man rode. He crawled beneath the wagon and hid, at the same time calling to Williams to do likewise. A few moments later he heard the men searching overhead and also a demand for money. Then a shot was fired. Too frightened to move, young Woodley remained hidden until daylight when he emerged from cover and looked for his friend. All that he found was a watch box which had been worn by Williams and splatters of blood on the circus wagon and the car.

Early on the morning following the tragedy the mutilated body of Williams, with a revolver shot through his breast, was found alongside the railroad track near Lexington. When Woodley's story was told the authorities were notified by telegraph and they took sixteen men of the circus crew into custody. The men were returned to Lexington and held for trial on the charge of murder. Several of those alleged to have been concerned in the murder escaped arrest at Augusta, but were subsequently captured at other parts of the country and returned here.

To Try Five Negroes.

Florence, S. C., Nov. 28.—A special term of the Florence county court convened today for the trial of the five negroes accused of the murder of E. M. Mayo, a well known resident of Florence who was killed several weeks ago in front of his home. One of the negroes is alleged to have confessed to the crime, implicating the other four.

TEXAS CLUB-WOMEN AT SAN ANTONIO

State Federation Will Begin Its Annual Convention Tomorrow.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

San Antonio, Texas, Nov. 28.—All preparations have been completed to entertain in comfortable style the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, which will begin its thirteenth annual convention here tomorrow, under conditions perhaps more favorable for a successful meeting than since the organization. All sections of the State will be represented. The local clubs are especially strong, and on them will devolve the work of entertaining the many visitors. Following an executive board meeting the general convention will be called to order at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the assembly hall of the St. Anthony Hotel. The sessions will continue four days, during which time a wide variety of topics of general interest will be discussed. Industrial education, prison reform, conservation and child welfare are among the subjects that will receive attention.

MADISON MANDROWNS IN A NORTHERN LAKE

M. S. Klauer Reported To Have Lost His Life On Thanksgiving Day While Crossing On Ice.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 28.—Word was received here this morning that M. S. Klauer, a wealthy retired merchant of this city and W. S. Waterous, of Austin, Ill., a former Madisonian, were drowned on Thanksgiving day while crossing the ice on Little Lake near the latter's hunting lodge, fourteen miles from Powell, in Iron County. Klauer had gone to Waterous place, which is the famous "Flambeau" resort on the south fork of the Flambeau river, for rest, about two weeks ago.

Both men are well known hunters. Klauer was aged 65, and Waterous 67. The news was telephoned from Powell by a homesteader and other details were not received. Many years ago Mr. Waterous kept the Point Hotel in this city. He is a relative of Lieut. Col. J. A. Waterous of Milwaukee. The well known newspaper writer.

MAY BE HELD FOR COMPANION'S DEATH

Richard Niemann, Thought to Be Responsible for Companion's Drowning, Is Held by Police.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Milwaukee, Nov. 28.—Aided by a calm lake the crew of the Milwaukee life saving station today attempted to recover the body of Frank Cagorski, aged 23, drowned early Sunday morning while with Richard Niemann, aged 17, he attempted to view a light storm from the breakwater a half mile out in the harbor. A large wave swept both from the breakwater and Cagorski was drowned. Niemann escaped by swimming to shore and is held by the Milwaukee police today following the finding of a revolver on his person. The police think Niemann is responsible for Cagorski's death, and are holding him on charges of carrying concealed weapons. Both are sons of prominent families in Germany and have been in Milwaukee studying at a local school. Niemann, accompanied by officers at noon today went to the breakwater and pointed out the spot where his companion was swept off. The body was later found by life savers. Niemann will probably be exonerated by the coroner's inquest.

ELECTION DISPUTE BEFORE STATE BOARD

Kuestermann-Knopp Controversy In Ninth Congressional District Is Before State Board of Canvassers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Nov. 28.—The Kuestermann-Knopp controversy in the Ninth congressional district, came up today before the state board of canvassers. Kuestermann, in emphatic terms, today, claimed the 31 votes in the Second ward, Marquette city, were not counted for him, which gave Knopp the plurality of 5. Both Kuestermann and Knopp are present and declare the case will be carried into the courts no matter what the decision of the board of canvassers may be. A decision will probably be given by the board late today.

PARLIAMENT WAS TODAY DISSOLVED

KING GEORGE ISSUES THE DE-CREE THIS MORNING IN COL-ORLESS DOCUMENT.

NEW ELECTION IS ORDERED

Next Session Is Ordered for the Thirty-first of January—Question of Right of House of Lords at Stake.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Nov. 28.—The second parliament in the reign of the late King Edward VII., which met February 15, last, was dissolved today in pursuance with a program of the liberal government to go before the country on the question of the prerogatives of the House of Lords.

The King's speech was notable for its brevity, the only reference to the constitutionalists being a colorless expression of regret that the conference between the leaders of the opposing parties failed of agreement over the referendum in the upper chamber.

The proclamation of dissolution summons a new parliament to assemble January 31, next.

This is the direct result of the refusal of the House of Lords to vote on the question of the veto power of the upper house in the measure passed by the House of Commons.

The liberal party are confident that the overwhelming majority that they will be given at the coming elections will have its influence upon the future of the House of Lords and ultimately take away the veto power they now exercise as well as curtail other rights.

SIX DIVORCES GRANTED TODAY

Plaintiffs to Three of the Actions
Were From Beloit; Two From Janesville; One From Edgerton.

In circuit court this afternoon Judge Grinn granted six interlocutory decrees of divorce. The court, personally, is much opposed to divorce and denied the recent action of Lydia Powers vs. W. W. Powers, though both parties to the case were anxious for it. But the evidence in every instance today was conclusive.

Nellie Aely of Janesville was divorced from Edwin J. Aely, voluntary separation for five years being urged. Susan E. Rodman of Janesville was divorced from Charles H. Rodman on the ground of desertion.

May Vanderhoff of Beloit was freed from Theodore W. Vanderhoff for desertion. Gertrude M. James of Beloit was freed from Irving H. James for cruelty. Katherine Lieble of Beloit was freed from Joseph Lieble for desertion.

Mary Louise Karll of Edgerton secured legal separation from Theodore W. Karll for desertion.

The case of the City of Edgerton vs. William Stricker was to be taken up late this afternoon.

THIEVES BROKE INTO THREE CARS

In Vicinity of Northwestern Freight
House and Wholesale Grocery
Last Evening.

Car thieves have resumed operations hereabouts. Three Northwestern freight cars, two of them stationed alongside the freight depot, and one beside the Janesville Wholesale grocery, were broken into last night. Judging from appearance, the intruders did not find what they were looking for and carried little plunder away. They pried open a box for the Smith Drug Co., a case of macaroni, and other receptacles and crates in the car near the grocery warehouse but so far as can be learned carried away only three tins of canned corn.

BASEBALL FAN'S ENTHUSIASM LANDED HIM IN THE LOCK-UP

Patrick Monahan Precipitated a General Rough-House At Conroy Home On Linn Street.

In municipal court this morning Patrick Monahan pleaded not guilty to a charge of drunkenness and told a heart-rendering story of a landlady who slapped him and boarders who punched him in the face, and who, in the meantime, "beat him" over the baseball season which closed some weeks ago. Officer Champion who piloted him towards the city hall at the request of fellow lodgers agreed that Monahan was not much intoxicated, but stated that he was very disorderly. So the case was adjourned until tomorrow morning and the prisoner released on his own recognizance. Whether a warrant for assault and battery will now be issued, remains to be seen.

Sentence in pay $2 or spend three days in jail was suspended in the case of Carl Olgren of Evansville, on his promise to start right out for the old home town, regardless of a half paralyzed left leg.

Charles Cullen who neglected to keep his promise and bring back the money for a previous offense, was assessed $3 on his plea of "guilty" to a charge of drunkenness and went to the hospital for 10 days. Mike Willy was unable to pay $3 and also drew 10 days. James O'Brien of Milwaukee could not pay $3 and will spend five days in the Hotel Scheffel. So, likewise, Fred Moss of Doorfield.

UNKNOWN MAN KILLED

An unknown man fell under a freight train and was killed at the new yard this afternoon. He appeared to be from 25 to 35 years of age. One leg was severed from the body and the other terribly mangled. The remains were brought to the city.

POLICE LOOKING FOR JESSE BICE

Payment Was Stopped on Check Which He Cashied at the Nichols Store on Main Street Saturday.

When W. J. Bates opened his grocery store door this morning he found lying upon the floor a note from Jesse Bice, who had been cashing at his store, and who had been cashing at his store for two weeks by the name of an aunt. Some time later the management of the Nichols store was apprised of the fact that payment had been ordered stopped on a check for $13.10 drawn by P. A. Pederson in favor of Mr. Bates which Bice had cashed shortly after banking hours on Saturday. The check was perfectly good and the signature on the back looked good, too, but when an inquiry was made it developed that it was not Mr. Bates' handwriting and that the check had been misused when the business was checked up Saturday night. Mr. Bates had been in the habit of sending this clerk to the Nichols store frequently to get bills changed and the accommodation had been granted without question. Bice is a married man and about 25 years of age. He narrowly escaped a trip to the penitentiary some time ago for taking four rubber-tired buggy wheels which belonged to Dr. Frank Van Kirk and throwing them into the river when he discovered that they wouldn't fit. Prior to that he came into possession of a set of harness belonging to Supt. David Barasa of the county farm in some unaccountable way but "settled" for it. Lately he has been boarding at 170 Locust street but no trace was to be found of him today.

EMIL EICHSTEDTS WON ROLLER RACE

State Amateur Champion Successfully Defended Title Against Frank Byrne Saturday Evening.

Emil Eichstedts of Milwaukee, state amateur roller skating champion won the one mile skating race at the West Side Rink Saturday evening defeating his title against Frank Byrne of this city. The race had a sensational finish, Eichstedts shooting ahead of Byrne just before Byrne crossed the line on the last lap. Eichstedts' time for the sixteen laps around the course was 3:28. Byrne was given a handicap of half a lap and held the lead until the twelfth lap when Eichstedts caught up with him and then went a little bit ahead. The rest of the match was exciting and aroused the spectators to cheer lustily for their favorite, Byrne. Byrne showed his best form in the contest Saturday night and exceeded the expectations of even those to whom he is best known. He was matched against an opponent who was not a peer in the state and made a remarkably fine showing. Eichstedts won favor with the crowd not only for his cleverness, but for his good sportsmanship. His brother, the fifteen-year old champion, who was to have raced here, was unable to appear because he was injured at the Racine rink a short time ago.

MILTON MAN CLAIMED THE STOLEN BLANKETS. O. D. Crumb Read Account in Gazette and Came Here Today to Identify Booty, Picked Up Near Black Bridge.

O. D. Crumb of the Milton farm implement firm of Crumb & Cleland, read the account in Friday's Gazette and came to Janesville this morning to lay claim to the black goat's skin lap robe and yellow blanket which the small son of John Davis found under a culvert near the Black Bridge. Dick Phlois, who had been robbed of similar property, was only half persuaded that the robe was his and willingly surrendered it when Mr. Crumb gave a minute description. The blanket, robe, and gunny-sacks were stolen at Milton two weeks ago tonight.

SAFETY COMMITTEE AT THE NEW YARDS

Officers of Roads and Representatives of Employees at South Janesville This Afternoon Looked Over Property.

A special train bearing the safety committee of the Northwestern line, committee of the Northwestern line, officials of the road and representatives of the employees, were at the South Janesville yards this afternoon, inspecting the property of the company there with regard to safety. The committee arrived from Chicago at 1:55 o'clock this afternoon on a special train and left later for Milwaukee. They will also visit the company's equipment at Fond du Lac.

TAX FERREYING MAY NOT BE MENTIONED

At the Regular Meeting of the Council This Evening—Bridge Bond Issues to Be Authorized.

That the common council will take any action, whatsoever, regarding the tax-ferreying proposition at the regular meeting this evening seems exceedingly unlikely. At any rate, the subject is going to be studiously overlooked—ignored and forgotten "for keeps." Ordinances will be introduced tonight authorizing the issue of $25,000 and $17,000 issues of five per cent bonds for the new bridges which are to be constructed at Fourth avenue and Racine street, and directing that an annual tax be collected in addition to the regular taxes and the proceeds used solely for the purpose of paying the principal and interest due on the next eighteen years. Charles Hoff has filed a petition for permission to operate a portable popcorn and peanut stand principally on the side streets intersecting Milwaukee street between Jackson street and the bridge, and offering to pay a license fee of $150 for the season. Mr. Boylen will ask for permission to transfer the license for his saloon at 12 North Franklin street to A. A. Harman. City Attorney Maxfield will probably make some recommendations regarding the owners and tenants of the lunch counters and confectionery stands who have been violating the fire ordinance. The ten days' notice served on them has expired and it is now in order for the council to formally direct the city marshal to raze the structures to the ground.

Welsh Loyalty. They tell a story in Onondaga county, says the Buffalo Courier, to illustrate Welsh loyalty, of two Welshmen coming across to make their fortunes in the new land. They had many friends in Ireland, that Welsh stronghold north of Ulster. Already they were enthusiastic and loyal because of the pictures painted in the letters which encouraged them to come to America. As they entered the bay, the Greater City of New York stretched out before them. "That must surely be Remsen," said one. "No," spoke the other. "That's New York." The first speaker looked long and hard. There was awe in his voice when he replied: "Well, then, and what must Remsen be?"

WHEN YOU GET DOWN TO THE PRACTICAL PIECE

For durability in the article for a Christmas gift, is there anything better than a piece of Sterling Silver? The leading patterns of today, although heavy in weight, are more simple in design and partake of the highest skill of the designer. We do not carry only two or three patterns in stock but have complete sets from which one may choose. These are the best and latest designs of the five largest sterling silver flat ware producers in the world.

Any former patterns produced within the past fifteen years which you may wish to match, come to us and you will find it in our stock as we carry the largest collection of sterling silver patterns of any jewelry house in southern Wisconsin.

Why Not a "CALORIC" Christmas

Why not make your Christmas a practical one—one that will please the entire household? If you do not know the real pleasure in "Caloric" cooked foods, you are missing something which is almost beyond comprehension.

Get a "Caloric"

With one you can bake and roast foods far better than is possible by any other method. It's less work, no trouble and you will have better cooked meals every day in the week, every week in the year.

Even the inexperienced cook can "turn out" most excellent baking, because the "Caloric" requires absolutely no attention after the raw food is placed into it—it can't burn.

The "Caloric" steams, stews and boils just as efficiently as it bakes and roasts. It is guaranteed to do just what we claim for it or your money refunded. Satisfaction, better cooked meals, and a less expenditure for fuel—less time in the kitchen—more time for reading, sewing, etc.

What better Christmas gift could you desire? It's put up in a handsome, special Christmas package. Let us show you.

CHANGES MADE IN TIME OF NORTHWESTERN TRAINS

Under New Schedule in Effect Yesterday Three Trains on Road Leave Here Earlier.

Changes in time of arrival and departure of three trains on the Northwestern road went into effect yesterday under the new schedule. Train No. 519, the Atlantic Express, from Minneapolis and St. Paul to Chicago, will arrive at Janesville at 7:30 o'clock in the morning instead of 7:40 and will depart at 7:55. In order that train No. 518, from Elroy to Janesville, may connect with the De Kalb passenger train, No. 300, No. 518 will arrive here at 8:45 a. m. instead of 9:00. A number of other changes are in effect under the new schedule which do not directly affect local traffic.

NEW RUN HAS BEEN ADDED ON WISCONSIN DIVISION

Trains No. 587 and 586 Will Run Through This City Between Chicago and Baraboo.

Two new freight trains have been added to the present service of the Northwestern road, running between Chicago and Baraboo. Train No. 587 will pass through here in the morning going north at 10:45 and going south train No. 586 will arrive at Janesville at 7:30 o'clock the next evening.

TWO DIVISIONS WANT THE CLASS "K" SWITCH ENGINE

Switch Engine No. 37, Taken Out of Service Here, Commanded by Both Madison and Wisconsin Divisions.

Switch-engine No. 37, a class "K" engine, which has been in use in the local yards for about three months past, has been taken out of service here, and will be turned over to one of two divisions. Today the division officials of the Wisconsin and Madison divisions were engaged in a discussion as to which should get the locomotive. The locomotive is being held here until a decision is reached as to where it shall go.

TWO MEN RETURNED TO WORK IN CAR DEPT.

Bad Orders Cars on Repair Track at New Yards Being Made Ready for Service Rapidly.

Two men, employed in the car department at the new yards, Walter Heubmaker and Ernest Blum, who were laid off the first of the month, were returned to work this morning. Their car department rapidly catching up with its work, turning over for service. It is stated, between fifteen and twenty cars daily. Most of these are foreign cars, cars from other railroads, which are given the preference over C. & N. W. cars, as the company is forced to pay a duty on the foreign cars.

An indication that the reduction of forces at the end of the month was but temporary is taken from the fact that the car department force at Fond du Lac worked Sunday.

His Lapse Into Profanity.

A good solid type of western Ontario gentleman not long ago told of the only time when he had been guilty of profanity. He and a friend had gone fishing, and for some time luck was dead against them. At last, however, they seemed to be about to get at the one time the reward for their patience. Both corks were bobbing beautifully, and it was in the excitement of the moment that the man who was very careful of his language was trapped into a lapse. "I've got a good bite," said the friend, eagerly, and with fully as much earnestness the man who never had indulged in unprintable talk whispered: "So have I."

Produce Pure Radium.

Mrs. Curie and M. Debiere have presented a joint resolution to the French Academy of Sciences announcing that they have succeeded in producing a pure radium. This metallic radium which has been secured by isolation of foreign matter is a brilliant white, turning black on exposure to the light. It will not set fire to paper, decomposes water rapidly, and adheres to iron.

An opportunity of a lifetime to visit the wonderful Sunny South Land at an ideal time of year

This Letter From a North Dakota Business Man Who Recently Moved to Janesville.

Janesville, Wis., Nov. 28, 1910.

Mr. Ward D. Williams,
Northern Manager Cross "S" Ranch Irrigated Farms, Janesville, Wisconsin.

Dear Sir: In answer to your request for my opinion of the Cross "S" Ranch property I hope I may be able to say something to induce someone to go down there and see the property.

The trip is well worth the time and money it costs to make it. I find there the soil, climate and water, but what impressed me the most was the nice class of people that were already on the farms there, and those that were then looking over the lands.

I take great comfort in knowing that I am soon to live amongst them and am trying hard to have my relatives and friends in North Dakota buy some land near ours on your Ranch.

I spent nearly a week on the Cross "S" Ranch and practically made a house to house canvas and am satisfied the climate could not be better. The resources are as you advertize and there is a great future for that artesian belt, where they are raising the most profitable fruits and vegetables I know of, at the right time of year for the best prices.

I have been in Oregon and Washington two different times, also Canada, and the conditions are nothing compared with the Cross "S". I can fault that country in no particular. It is good enough for yours truly,

W. T. BEST.

FREE RAILROAD FARE

We are not selling you a mail order packet in offering these wonderful farms. You don't pay before you get your land. We refund railroad fare to every man who goes on our next excursion and who, after looking over the Cross "S" Ranch farms and irrigated fig orchards, buys one acre of fig or 20 acres of farm lands. On the excursion that left Janesville Nov. 15th, about 100 men went. Six of them were from this vicinity and every one bought Cross "S" Ranch farms. Don't fail to go on the excursion that leaves Janesville on Dec. 6th, because this is the last chance you have of seeing this land BEFORE the price advances. Prices advance Jan. 1st. The railroad fare is but $31.20 round trip. It's the greatest pleasure trip you can take for the money. If you invest in Cross "S" Ranch farms your railroad fare is returned, so you are nothing out.

Special News From Crystal City Chronicle

PROF. MALLY IS ON HIS JOB—LEAVES STATE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE TO WORK AT CRYSTAL CITY.

As has been previously announced through the columns of the Chronicle, the Cross "S" Company has secured the services of Prof. F. W. Mally, Entomologist of the State Department of Agriculture, to assist purchasers of Cross "S" Ranch lands in the development of their farms, orchards and gardens.

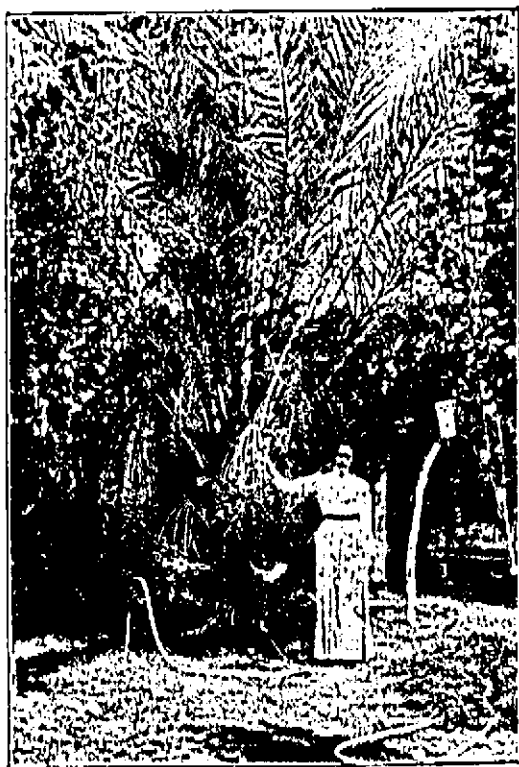

Prof. Mally has arrived and has been quietly circulating among those clearing and preparing their lands for crops for the current season. He has been familiarizing himself with local conditions and is now ready to assist those requiring his counsel, and to come to their aid at once. Those who have progressed far enough in their development work to profit by his suggestions, should leave word either at the office of the Cross "S" Ranch at Crystal City, or their office at the East Side Hotel. Prof. Mally will then pay them a visit as soon as possible.

In this connection it is well to state that Prof. Mally has had seventeen years experience as a truck farmer, fruit grower and general farmer in Southwest Texas.

As evidence of the confidence his associates in Texas repose in him, the Texas State Horticultural Society elected him president, and he served his term in that capacity with credit to himself as well as the State Horticultural Society.

He also served a term as President of the Texas Truck Growers' Association. He served about five years as a member of the faculty of the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College as Professor of Entomology.

More recently he was elected Entomologist of the Texas State Department of Agriculture. This position he resigned to accept the directorship of the industrial development of the properties of the Cross "S" Company.

Date palm on Cross "S" Ranch with 700 pounds of dates.

Such wonderful chances do not remain long. People are fast learning of the wonderful possibilities of the Southwest Texas and land values will double and treble in a few years. Prices on Cross "S" ranch advance Jan. 1st. Go with us on our next excursion, Dec. 6. See this land, talk with others who live there. You will buy after you investigate.

SECTION LABORER INSTANTLY KILLED

Edward Widmen Of Sharon, Had Neck Broken In Accident North Of Sharon Sunday Morning.

Edward Widmen, a track laborer employed by the Northwestern railroad, was instantly killed about 9:20 o'clock yesterday morning in an accident which occurred along the tracks of the road about three quarters of a mile north of Sharon. Widmen had been riding on a speeder inspecting the track when an extra freight train, which Engineer Ed. Sorber and Fireman Hutchins, both of Chicago, were running, came along. Widmen stepped off the track at the approach of the train and then returned to lift off the speeder. The train which was approaching at a rapid rate could not be stopped in time and the pilot struck the speeder, throwing it so that it hit Widmen in the face and broke his neck. He was dead when picked up.

According to Engineer Sorber's statement the accident, Widmen was standing on the track, bending over the rail, when he (Sorber) saw the man and took the whistle of the engine. Widmen straightened up, looked back and then stepped off the track. He apparently suffered no other injuries, there being no indication of any bruises on his body excepting for the mark on his face where he was struck by the hand car.

Widmen was about forty years of age and was married. He lived in Sharon. The coroner's inquest was held in Sharon at nine o'clock this morning.

Home Course In Health Culture

X—"Nerves" In the Home

By EUGENE L. FISK, M. D.
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"NERVES" are quite as pernicious an influence in the household as microbes. It is unfortunate that, unlike microbes, "nerves" cannot be killed, fumigated or killed by antiseptics. It is true that fresh air, sunlight, exercise and simple diet are natural enemies of "nerves," as they are of microbes, but these remedies require time and the enforcement of a discipline which it is difficult to attain in a "nervous" household, and so it is regrettable that we cannot treat these pesky nerves as we do diphtheria germs and drive them from the home atmosphere with formaldehyde gas.

Prevalence of Nervous Diseases.

There is reason to believe that under the strain of modern conditions nervous disease is claiming an increasing number of victims. This belief derives little support from census returns or vital statistics in the large cities, if such statistics are taken at their face value, without close analysis. The bald figures show a marked decline in the death rate from nervous disease during recent years. But on digging beneath the surface we find that much of the decrease is due to the saving of infant lives from death by "convulsions," a cause of death reported under "nervous diseases." On going still further and ascertaining what changes have occurred in the mortality from degenerative diseases of the heart, arteries and kidneys, we find that during the past thirty years the mortality from these diseases in the United States registration area has increased 105 per cent.

The question naturally arises, is this excessive mortality, falling chiefly among the middle aged and elderly, a necessary accompaniment of our civilization?

HAVING LEARNED THAT YOU POSSESS A NERVOUS SYSTEM OF AMAZING PERFECTION, "SMILE AND FORGET IT."

ization? The answer is emphatically, No. Neglect and temporary failure of adjustment to conditions, which have changed with marvelous rapidity in the past half century, are responsible for this heavy loss of life. When the batteries of preventive medicine are fully trained upon this degenerative class of maladies, as they have been trained upon tuberculosis, typhoid and other germ diseases, a reduction in the death rate among the middle aged and elderly will take place quite as remarkable as that already attained among the younger members of the community.

Causes of Nervous Disease.

The conditions that give rise to nervous degeneration are so numerous that they could not be described within the limits of this paper. They may be grouped, however, under three general headings—heredity, overstimulation and understimulation. Between the two extremes last mentioned lies the "golden mean" of a well poised, harmoniously adjusted nervous system.

Overstimulation is the result of the demands and opportunities arising out of our rapidly developing and complex civilization, the strenuous life calling for a continuous and rapid adjustment of our minds to the kaleidoscope changes which are going on around us.

We sometimes forget that the incidents and experiences that formerly would have required a lifetime of 100 years may now be crowded into a tenth of that period.

Understimulation affects those who are outside of the mainstream, who have drifted into the backwaters, whose lives are so narrow that monotony induces a spiritual starvation, finally reflected in a physical exhaustion of the nerve centers.

First Steps in Prevention.

Having learned that you possess a nervous system of amazing complexity, "smile and forget it." Only the strongest brain can indulge in critical self analysis, especially of a nervous system out of repair, without becoming morbidly self conscious and exaggerating nervous manifestations which are often of trifling importance.

With the latent knowledge that you have such a system and a very definite knowledge of the things that will injure it, go on your way with habits formed accordingly and with confidence in your ability to defy disease and the odds are all in your favor. Nerve strain, neurasthenia and a host of other troubles will pass by, leaving you unscathed.

Hereditarily is undoubtedly responsible for many cases of nervous failure and the maladies that follow in its wake. If individuals whose family history shows a tendency to nervous or degenerative disease would refrain from marrying the faces of this globe would be transformed as if by magic within a generation.

Value of Early Training.

For best results we must begin early. Regularity, discipline and the upbuilding of self control are the watchwords in dealing not only with the nervous child, but with all children. Freedom from undue excitement and strain are likewise important. The nervous child must not be asked to compete either physically or mentally with more fortunately endowed children. The very principle of "competition" should be excluded from the home and school life and the principle of "training" substituted. Work and play for their own sake is a higher ideal than the mere desire to "beat the other fellow."

The habit of early retiring should be especially enforced with nervous children. Excitement in the evening hours should be avoided and the child encouraged to seek his rest while in a normal, sleepy condition instead of in a state of high tension from romping or the reading of exciting tales.

Dangers of School Strain.

A clear brain and a sound nervous system are far more valuable possessions than a highly cultivated mind and a shattered nervous system.

The nervous system of the growing child is an exceedingly delicate and impressionable mechanism. If the demands upon it are too heavy the evil influence may reach far into adult life. This is especially true as affecting girls between the ages of twelve and seventeen. The school work should be carefully considered at this period, and if there is any sign of nervous instability or weakness freedom from the strain and confinement of school life is safer until the child's health and nervous control are fully restored.

Nervous children and, in fact, all children should be examined for any possible local sources of irritation, such as eye strain, adenoids, enlarged tonsils, defective teeth, etc. Correction of these troubles may change the entire future of the individual and greatly simplify the work of training.

Nerve Strain in Adult Life.

"Overstimulation" has been mentioned as the second great cause of nervous maladies. This term would connote with intemperance in its broadest sense. Many prohibitionists are extremely intemperate not only in their language, but in their manner of life. They drink no liquor, but they often eat too much and drink too much tea or coffee or talk too much or work too hard and too long. I would not be understood as criticizing the prohibition movement or the average prohibitionist, but merely wish to show that "intemperance" covers a wide range of activities and indulgences which may be injurious in their effect. The society "climber," the business "climber," the "man about town," the speculator, the glutton, the debauchee, the average "daily" drinker, the drunkard, are all types of intemperance or overstimulation.

The business drudge, the household drudge, the laboring drudge, the mentally deficient, are all types of the understimulated class, upon whom deadly monotony exerts its lethal power. It seems that when a life is confined within too narrow limits a condition of inequality or strain arises in the nervous system. One set of cells is used until they are "worn to a frazzle," and then the trouble comes.

The Tired Woman.

The tired woman is often the first phase of the nervous woman. The monotony of domestic routine, unre-laxed by that daily contact with the outside world which often saves a man from hysteria, is a fertile source of nerve failure among women. It is my belief that every housewife needs a vacation occasionally.

There is reason to believe that intense grief, worry or remorse relating to matters really long since settled is often responsible for neurasthenia and functional nerve troubles. It is desirable to get such things "out of the system." Talk the matter over with your physician or your clergyman and ventilate the chamber of your mind in which it has been confined. The nursing of a "grouch" is a type of this trouble.

Effect of Prolonged Strain.

If the finest quality of bow is kept continuously bent it will lose its resiliency. Likewise the most finely poised nervous system if subjected to continuous and unremitting strain will acquire in time a warp or twist which requires the most skillful and patient treatment to remove. The business or professional man who presses steadily toward some mark, grudging even the time given to meals and refusing to take intervals of rest, often defeats his own ends. It has been contended that it is "worry" and not "work" that kills. Worry is certainly a terrible and often unnecessary health destroyer, but it is contrary to common sense as well as science to contend that the delicate tissues of brain and nervous system are not injured by overwork.

Caesar's Lament.

The wild beasts gnashed their teeth and roared like a circus calliope; the gladiators shouted hoarsely; the arena was knee-deep with gore.

In the amphitheater the pleasure-seeking populace clamored tumultuously.

"More blood! More death!" they yelled ferociously.

Great Caesar in his private box heard their cry and sighed.

"Would that I might grant their prayer," he muttered, "if only—and imploringly he raised his eyes heavenward—"I could pull off an automobile cup race!"

Great Caesar wept. For with all his boasted power he was unable to hasten the flight of time.

A Lack.

"Are the preparations all made for your husband's trial?" "Not quite," responded the prisoner's wife, "One of my dreammakers got the grip and disappointed me."

EYE NOT PATRIOTIC ENOUGH

Oculist's Second Attempt Procures for Him Decoration From Haitian Emperor.

During the reign of Emperor Soulaoung in Haiti one of his generals wrote to an eminent oculist in Paris ordering a glass eye. The oculist flattered himself that a successfully constructed artificial optic would secure for him a decoration of honor by the Haitian government; accordingly, he devoted his entire skill to the production of a work of art.

Six months after the shipment of the eye to Haiti, the oculist received a small box from Haiti. In his imagination he pictured the golden testimonial to his skill, so it was with horror that, when he had unwound the folds of cotton in the box, he saw returned his work of art. A letter accompanied the box. Among other things it said:

"The eye you have forwarded me is of a tint that resembles that of the Spanish flag, and I am too patriotic to wear any but the color of my country."

Whereupon the oculist proceeded at once to the admiralty, where he ascertained the colors of the Haitian flag. He then immediately manufactured a scarlet and green eye, of the approved shades, and forwarded it to the emperor, who was much pleased with the effort and who duly decorated the oculist.

In These Rapid Days.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

THE LADY who came to spend the day with mother yesterday brought her little grandchild. And at four o'clock, when school was out, the little girl next door and the little girl from two doors down the street came over to play dolls with her.

Mother produced some of the old family playthings in the way of doll's furniture for them, and for awhile they played most happily in the next room to my study. And then, all at once, I was conscious of a discord. The dispute concerned the arrangement of the furniture.

"But they never have a bureau in a parlor," I heard.

"You they do. When we lived in the boarding house we had a bureau in our parlor behind the screen."

"But we haven't got a screen."

"I don't care. We've got to have the bureau in the parlor because if we don't there'll only be a piano and a chair, and you can't have a parlor with just a piano and a chair."

"But you can't have a bureau in a parlor, and I won't."

"Then I won't play, and I don't like you, and I'm going down and get grandma to take me home. I don't want to play with you. So there!"

This last remark, delivered in a shrill tone, audible all over the house, brought grandmother to the scene of action.

"Madeline, don't you dare say that naughty thing again," she reproved. "Of course you will play with the other little girls and play as they want to. You know you can't have your own way all the time."

"That's the worst thing about Madeline," she explained to me subsequently, when comparative peace had been restored. "When she can't have her own way she sits down and says 'I won't play.' I think that's a terrible trait in a child. If she were my child I'd break her of it no matter what I had to do."

With difficulty I repressed a smile. Not because I don't agree with grandmother, I do, thoroughly. I don't know any trait I dislike more in a child than the "I won't play" habit. But you see I dislike it even more in grown-ups. And that's why I smiled.

For once on a time Madeline's grandmother used to be a very active member of a certain club. She isn't any longer because the club voted to change its place of meeting to one more generally accessible. Madeline's grandmother vigorously opposed the move, but lost. Therefore she said the grown-up equivalent to "I won't play," and left the club in wrath.

There is a woman in our neighborhood who used to be a strong church member but who hasn't been inside the church this year. She thought the society needed a change of ministers. The trustees thought differently. So she said, "I won't play until you do what I want," and hasn't been inside the church since.

Two of my neighbors, who are usually active workers in the church fair, are doing nothing this year. Why? Because they wanted the church to hire a larger hall for the sale, and the majority of the worshippers deemed that unwise. So those highly charitable and religious folks said, "We won't play," and retired into their respective corners to sulk and hope the fair would be a failure.

But why multiply instances? You know the "I won't play" folks as well as I do.

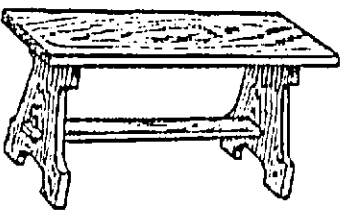

And hate them as much, I have no doubt.

So, of course, I don't need to suggest that you be sure not to resemble them in the slightest degree.

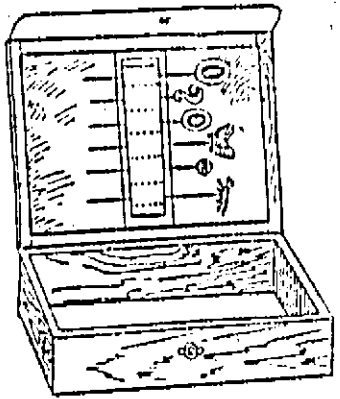

DO YOUR SHOPPING EARLY.

Gifts to girls may always be of a personal nature except of course where the donor is a man. Then the gift should be limited to books, candy, flowers, some curio or quaint and odd bit of jewelry picked up abroad. Only jewelry which are inexpensive and have some association such as having been purchased in India or the Orient, or of the Indians should be offered by a man to his women friends. Fans are sometimes given under these circumstances. Picture postcards are accepted without question. But when in doubt buy books. The man who likes to use carpenter tools, however, has some excuse for making a more personal gift.

A piano bench for the girl who plays will be accepted with pleasure. The personal nature of the gift will be lost.

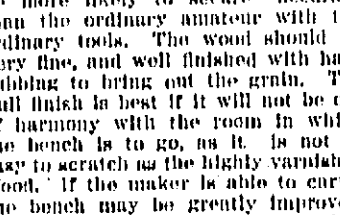

sight of in the fact that it is the handiwork of the donor. A bench like the design shown will require one board 30x14 inches for the top, two boards 15x17 for the ends, and on strip 30x5 inches for the lower stay piece. The designs may be varied by the ordinary craftsman. It is well to have the and pieces cut by some cabinet maker who will charge but a few cents and be more likely to secure accuracy than the ordinary amateur with the ordinary tools. The wood should be very fine, and well finished with hard rubbing to bring out the grain. The dull finish is best if it will not be out of harmony with the room in which the bench is to go, as it is not so easy to scratch as the highly varnished wood. If the maker is able to carve, the bench may be greatly improved, and its value enhanced by carving. If a more elaborate piece is desired the top may be made as a box with a hinged lid to hold music. The addition of a leather cushion is also good.

A gift that any girl will appreciate is a bureau box. This should be about 2 inches deep and made to go the entire length of the dresser for which it is intended. It should be at least 12 inches in width and should be partitioned into two or three compartments. Well finished, it will be a thing of beauty and utility which any girl would rejoice in. The many articles which usually litter the top of the dresser can be safely tucked into the box and much peace of mind would result. Do not have any things to be soiled and grow tawdry, but either finish the inner side like the exterior or paint it in harmony with the finish. It can then be wiped out, and kept as a dainty gift for her belongings to be kept. The wood should be light but fine, and the hinges and lock of art brass, or copper.

The art studio sketch made of wood and so common that it is not necessary to illustrate them, but they would be lovely made in harmony with the dresser box.

The girl who would like to carry out the same idea, but is not expert with cabinet tools could work it out by using corrugated packing board. This may usually be sought of the photographer. The box should be cut very accurately and pasted together with heavy cotton strips. The whole should then be covered with heavy cretonne, in color and design to harmonize with the room, or the heavy canvases may be used and then stencilled. The inside should be lined with a plain color of a darker shade.

For a man a box to hold handkerchiefs, in either the wood or in the cloth covered box may be made a little more original by putting the inside of the cover and placing a strip of ribbon across attached down each half inch to hold stick pins.

Her Hopeful Disposition. "Women," remarked Jones, "are naturally more hopeful than men." "Yes," agreed Smith, "there's my wife, for instance, every time she buys fish she asks the shopman if they are fresh. I suppose she hopes that some day he'll say no."—Stray Stories.

Where "Cranford" Was Written. To lovers of that English classic "Cranford" this picture of the house in Manchester, England, where Mrs. Gaskell wrote her luminous story will doubtless be of great interest. The centenary of Mrs. Gaskell's birth was recently celebrated at Knutsford, Cheshire, the English village which furnished the author with character studies for "Cranford," in which she reproduced to the life the everyday existence of the "middle class" and widows of limited means" who formed the social life of the village.

The Biographer's Art. Even in the hands of a master, it is difficult for a biography to escape being tedious at times; but the deadly dullness of the volumes put forth at the present day might be avoided. Critics frequently deplore the tendency to hero-worship in modern biographers—one would not surely quarrel with them for suppressing any famous adulation—but the fact remains that hero-worship is the feature of the great biographies of the world.

PREPARATION FOR DAY OF JUDGMENT

WAS EMPHASIZED IN SERMON BY REV. JOHN MCKINNEY AT CHRIST CHURCH.

CHURCH OFFERS SALVATION

And Is the Means of Advancement From Sordidness of Material World to Christ's Kingdom.

In the sermon at the Christ Episcopal church last evening, Rev. John McKinney emphasized the need of being ever ready for the second coming of Christ and the means by which we may be sure that our lives will be acceptable in his sight. He said in part: "There are two worlds, the visible and the invisible. To some of the world of some of time and of matter is the real and everlasting universe, but to others it is only a steppingstone to something higher and better. In every man there is a certain amount of religion, and it makes no difference how far he may be carried away by worldliness and sin there will remain a spark of religious instinct which can never be effaced. Whatever attitude a man may take toward his surroundings it is inevitable that his personality will be developed along the line of that attitude and at the last he must stand accountable, whether he has made or marred, before the judgment seat of God. The deeds we have done whether they be good or bad, must stand for us in the final world. "There are many people today who say that this is a practical world and they rest the entire success of their achievement upon material success on this earth. They deny religion and its institution—the church. And yet he who sneers at the church acknowledges what the church has done for humanity. And if the church does not make for Christian character it has no reason to live. The church which satisfies for the time being but makes no permanent effect on the motives of life and which does not strengthen a man to go out and resist the temptations of sin, has no function in the world at the present time. The chief purpose of Christ's teachings and of the church which was founded upon them, is to prepare men for resistance of sin. "The man who is bound to respect religion is no longer his own, but belongs to Christ, and so should conform to his life, religion and teachings. It is sometimes said that Christ's teachings do not apply today, but the only reason that they do not apply is because they are not applied. In three and one-half years of intense living Christ presented teachings that have transformed the world; they have been received to us from generation to generation and have kindled and spread the fires of civilization and enlightenment over the entire globe. He has given the promise of a return at some future time; when that time will be we do not know; He told His followers that it was unknown even to Himself. Are we ready for His coming? What can you present to Christ? Have the things that you have said and done always been in conformance with His teachings? You have had the opportunity to love and honor and worship and live His life, and if you have not taken the advantage, what excuse have you to offer? The light of His eye is all comprehensive and no detail of our inmost nature can escape him. "But we have not been left alone without help or aid. The church has been given to us as an organ by which we may be ever ready to stand before the Master in judgment. All that is necessary is to give ourselves over to the mercy of His divine spirit, allow ourselves to be devoted to him and His teachings always, and then let our part as best we can in accordance with his desires and we need have no fear when the Lord of the Universe cometh. But those who have mocked Christ need expect no mercy. It may be possible to escape the scrutiny of our friends and neighbors, and even of the judges on the bench, but no man can escape the supreme justice of the eye of Christ. "Our salvation lies in giving ourselves up to Him and committing our entire faith to Him and His teachings. He will not lack compassion and mercy for us and we will not care at what time He may come to claim His own, whether it be in the busy hours of noonday or in the quietness of midnight, we will know that He has saved us for His kingdom."

CHURCH WEDDING FOR POPULAR MONROE COUPLE

Miss Grace Haren Became the Bride of Mr. Paul V. Hodges at St. Victor's Church. (Special to the Gazette.)

Monroe, Wis., Nov. 28.—St. Victor's church was the scene of a beautiful and impressive wedding, the principals of the event being Miss Grace Haren and Mr. Paul V. Hodges, both the bride and groom coming from prominent families in this city. The bride entered the church on her

HEALTH AND INCOME—

Both Kept Up on Scientific Food.

Good sturdy health helps one a lot in making money. With the loss of health one's income is liable to shrink, if not entirely dwindle away. When a young lady has to make her own living good health is her best asset. "I am alone in the world," writes a Chicago girl, "dependent on my own efforts for my living. I am a clerk and about two years ago through close application to work and a boarding house diet I became a nervous invalid, and got so bad off it was almost impossible for me to stay in the office a half day at a time. "A friend suggested to me the idea of trying Grape-Nuts food which I did, making it at least a large part of two meals a day. "Today I am free from brain-tire, dyspepsia and all the ills of an over-worked and improperly nourished brain and body. To Grape-Nuts I owe the recovery of my health and the ability to retain my position and income." "I read the above letter," a New one appears from time to time. father's arm, attired in a lovely creation of crepe meteor with pearl trimmings and wearing an exquisite white beaver hat with a large white willow glaze completely covering it. Her bridesmaid, Miss Marie Haren, wore a gown of apricot messaline and wore a picture hat of black beaver.

The church was sung by St. Victor's choir and A. Fred Trachsel played the wedding march. The ceremony was attended by large numbers of relatives and friends, and a number of them were present at the wedding breakfast which followed at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Haren.

The bride is a graduate of the Monroe high school and the groom graduated from the Madison University with the class of 1908. He is at present county surveyor. Mr. and Mrs. Hodges are now in Chicago and upon their return will reside at 221 Main Street, where a furnished home awaits them. Included in the guests were from Chicago, Arvyle, Freeport and Janesville.

DIVINING ROD IS OF NO GOOD WHATEVER

Farmers Who Have Depended Upon It Method Told To Abandon

It and Use Common Sense.

There was a day when the divining rod in the hands of an experienced person was thought all that was necessary to locate a hidden spring or underground current of water. It was even believed in the days of witch and black art, that hidden treasures could be found by means of the mysterious hazy wand tipped with silver. If it had been properly used in the full of the moon, in a grave yard and the person cutting it had a rabbit's foot and foot in their pocket. The divining rod used by many farmers to locate hidden wells was however of a different type and really guessed right lots of times. However the United States geological survey has issued its death knell in a recent report by M. L. Fuller. Mr. Fuller enumerates the various kinds of rocks and deposits that contain and convey underground water, describes the several types of wells, and discusses measures for the protection of springs and wells from pollution. The report contains also sections on methods of well boring, the use of electric, the divining rod, the advantages and disadvantages of different kinds of wells, and the location and cost of wells. It covers 56 pages and is illustrated by numerous plates and figures. In speaking of the divining rod Mr. Fuller says: "No appliance, either mechanical or electrical, has yet been devised that will detect water in places where plain common sense will not show its presence just as well. The uselessness of the divining rod is indicated by the facts that it may be worked at will by the operator, that he fails to detect strong water currents in tunnels and other free courses that afford no surface indications of water, and that his locations in regions where water flows in well defined channels are no more successful than where guesses in fact, his operators are successful only in regions where ground water occurs in a definite sheet in porous material. In such regions few failures to find water can occur, for wells can get water almost anywhere."

Always Happens.

USE OF MAIL BOXES AT THE RESIDENCES

Post Office Department May Order Them Installed—Now Simply Request Them.

Postmaster Valentine will within a short time send out to every person receiving mail by the carrier a request that they install mail boxes for the use of the department. This request comes in an implied order from the Post Office department at Washington who are seriously considering ordering that mail boxes be installed everywhere. The letter which the department has prepared to be sent out is as follows:

"By direction of the post office department, the attention of patrons of this office is invited to the advantages of providing facilities for the receipt of their mail by erecting conveniently accessible boxes or cutting suitable slots in their doors. Such action would enable the postmaster to give a prompter and better delivery service with the means at his disposal, since the carriers can cover much more territory in less time if not compelled to wait for an answer to their ring. Private receptacles for mail are also a great convenience to the household, obviating the necessity of responding to the carrier's call at inconvenient moments and permitting the safe delivery of mail in the absence of members of the household. They also prevent the occasional necessity of a carrier's proceeding on his route without delivering his ring within a reasonable time, and enable him to make deliveries to patrons living on or near the end of the route at an earlier hour.

"It has been shown by actual experience that the benefits derived by patrons of city delivery from the use of such receptacles far outweigh the small expense involved. As this office is interested in furnishing the best possible service at the least expense, your compliance with the foregoing suggestions will be much appreciated."

CHRISTMAS STAMP SALE BEGAN TODAY

Anti-Tuberculosis Association Begins Crusade Every City in Wisconsin.

Today marked the opening of the sale of the Christmas stamps by the Anti-Tuberculosis society of Wisconsin in every city in the state. Miss Louise Merrill has charge of the crusade in Janesville which will last four weeks, closing at midnight December 24th. Numerous prizes have been offered for the sale of the most stamps which adds interest to the contest.

To the city above 2,000 population making the highest sale according to population will be awarded a $250 Fleming piano, donated by the P. G. Smith Piano company of Milwaukee. One $50 sanitary street cleaning outfit will be awarded to one city offering a 1,000 population or over in each congressional district. The eleven townships are donated by James H. Clow & Sons, Chicago.

Complete equipment for an open-air school will be awarded to the city of 15,000 population or over making the highest per capita sale. The University Extension division of the University of Wisconsin offers three lecture courses, to be awarded to the three cities or villages under 1,500 population making the highest per capita sale.

To the twelve cities of 8,000 to 15,000 population making the highest per capita sale will be given one month's services of a visiting nurse in the order of their sale.

A twenty-cent tuberculosis exhibit is offered to the local anti-tuberculosis society in the city making the highest per capita sale.

A concert size phonograph and twelve choice records are offered to the incorporated village of 1,000 population or under making the highest sale according to population.

For rural schools there is offered a prize of 500 sanitary drinking cups and cup cabinet. The rural school making the highest per capita sale, based on the enrollment during the month of November, will receive the prize.

Every boy and girl in rural schools and state graded schools of the first and second grades who sell 500 Christmas seals will receive two valuable books, "Good Health" and "The Body and Its Defenses" of the Gullik hygienic series.

The special prize for Catholic parochial schools consists of $100 worth of books selected by the winner from the stock of the M. H. Wilson company of Milwaukee. The school making the highest per capita sale, based on the average enrollment during November, will be adjudged winner.

As will be seen, no city school or individual has an advantage over another. The little city has exactly the same chance of winning as the large city. It will be recalled that last year a city of 2,000 won the big prize in competition with cities of 25,000 to 50,000.

The crusade will start their march next Monday. Every patriotic citizen should heed their appeal. Christmas seals cost but a penny each. Every seal is a bullet in the fight against consumption. Then, too, the seal is a neat and handsome sticker or to convey holiday greetings. Every piece of mail, packages, gifts and bundles should bear a seal.

NAT'L BASKETBALL CHAMPIONS COMING

Lakota Cardinals Will Play Portage Regiment Team, Winners Or A. A. B. Meet Last Year.

On Wednesday evening of this week, will occur the best basketball game ever played in this city when the Lakota Cardinals will play the Portage Regiment team at the West Side Gym. The Portage squad were champions of the state last season and in the A. A. B. meet at Chicago captured the national title as well. It is a foregone conclusion that the Cardinals will lose, but the exhibition will undoubtedly be the best ever witnessed. The Portage five is making a tour and are carrying with them their strongest players. The Janesville quintet will probably be strengthened by Kuehnle, center with the team of University players who were the first to defeat the Cardinals.

REGULATIONS MADE REGARDING STAMPS

Christmas Or Charity Stamps On Foreign Mail Must Be On Reverse Side.

Each Sam has issued strict orders to his postmasters relative to the placing of Christmas or charity stamps upon packages and letters that are to be sent through the mails, to be delivered in foreign countries. These stamps and Christmas greetings must be placed on the reverse side of the package or letter and not upon the side having the address. Failure to comply with this will cause all such packages or letters to be returned to the sender if they can be found. If not, to the dead letter office. This step is taken to avoid delays in handling the mails and also to leave room for cancellation of the regular stamps without damaging the pretty Christmas greetings. The Postoffice department has also made special arrangements for the rapid transportation of Christmas mail intended for Europe.

According to an announcement made today the steamship Philadelphia, originally scheduled to sail from New York for Plymouth, Cherbourg and Southampton, at 10 a. m., Saturday, Dec. 17, will leave New York at the same time the preceding day. The Marylandia scheduled to depart on Dec. 21, will sail at 6 p. m., Saturday, Dec. 17, instead.

This will make it necessary for persons in any part of the United States to mail their letters or packages for the United Kingdom and other parts of Europe early enough for them to reach New York on Friday, Dec. 16, or Saturday, Dec. 17.

Both Require Patience.

Many a good checker player has sneered at people for wasting precious time playing solitaire.—Chicago Record-Herald.

ROCK COUNTY BOYS TO STUDY FARMING

Local Young Men Will Attend Short Course in Agriculture At State University.

A delegation of Rock County boys are planning to enter the short course in Agriculture, which opens December 3, at the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

Those who will attend for the second year are: C. P. Shuman, Koshkonong; H. L. Bingham, Milton.

Improved Courses Offered This Year.

The studies in the Short Course offered this year are better than ever before and a greater variety of subjects will be given. The principal courses in Live Stock Husbandry, farm crops, soils, horticulture, farm machinery, veterinary science and chemistry will be given much the same as in previous years. The new courses in poultry raising will be better than when first given last year owing to the increased equipment and flock of the poultry department. The courses in farm management and farm accounts, will be much improved and will include much new material.

A feature of the Short Course work this year will be the gymnastic exercises, which will be conducted regularly under an expert instructor, to provide the needed exercises to keep the farm boys, used to outdoor work, in good physical condition.

How the Course Helps.

A Short Course graduate of the class of 1896 visited the College the other day. When he completed the course he went to Pennsylvania to work in a big livestock breeding establishment. At the end of the first week the proprietor told him that his services were worth $25 a month with board. The practical training secured in the Short Course enabled him to advance readily as a stockman and he is now a successful student of one of the largest estates in the east at a salary of $2,500 a year, with house, garden and driving team furnished.

Wisconsin is full of boys who found the Short Course the opening to great success in farming. One graduate of ten years ago and is now a seed grain grower of national reputation handling over $10,000 worth of seeds a year. Another was a farm hand at $20 a month five years ago and now operates a stock farm with a net income of over $2,000 a year. Many others have returned to their home farms to put the old place on a paying basis. It pays to study how to farm right.

DR. FRANK BILLINGS TO GIVE ADDRESS

Notes—Chicago Physician Is To Talk At Rock County Medical Meeting Tuesday Evening.

Dr. Frank Billings of Chicago, former president of the national medical society and one of the most prominent physicians in the west, will address the November meeting of the Rock County Medical society at their meeting at the City Hall, Tuesday evening at eight o'clock. Dr. Billings takes for his subject Infantile Paralysis, a subject that is today one of the problems to the medical world. Dr. C. W. Howell, president of the county society, will introduce the speaker and preside at the meeting and the regular program set for tonight, of which Dr. Buckmaster was leader, has been postponed one month. The subject of Infantile Paralysis is one which physicians who have studied all types of it carefully have been unable to solve. It is a serious matter in many parts of the country, a sort of epidemic that thus far no remedy has been found to stop. It afflicts children from infancy to the age of ten or twelve years and has even been known to attack adults. The percentage of deaths from this cause is very large being on an average of one to five affected. It leaves those who recover in a state of semi-paralysis and otherwise crippled. There has been no cause for the disease as yet discovered and it appears in isolated spots. Its medical name is anterior poliomyelitis. One of the most recent and prominent cases in medical annals is that of the children of Congressman Frank O. Lowden of Chicago. Both recovered. Previously the disease was said to be due to sanitary conditions and affect the children of the poor only, but this set this theory at rest, and brought a new problem into consideration. Robert had had one case, which resulted fatally, but thus far Janesville has escaped.

Wanted His Dues.

A reservation Indian was discomfited over the breaking of his ax handle. He told his misfortune before the "farmer" of the reservation, who, through pity, took a new handle from his private stock and adjusted it to the ax. The farmer then noticed that the ax was shockingly dull. So, including the owner to turn the grindstone, he expended a half hour's time in sharpening the blade. When the sharp-edged ax was given to the Indian he was childishly gleeful, but still "bugged" about, indicating by his actions that some feature of the transaction had not been adjusted.

The farmer was a little annoyed and called to an interpreter, "Ask the old fellow what he wants now," he directed.

After an exchange of grunts and gestures the interpreter announced, "He wants 25 cents."

"Twenty-five cents! What for?" "For turning the grindstone."—Harper's.

A THRIFTY TENOR.

Tamagno Walked, but His Carriage Bill Had to Be Paid.

Several years ago a tenor named Tamagno was engaged to come to America and sing at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York. He was paid $1,000 a night. This is a sum which would make many people willing to put up with small extra expenses, but not so Tamagno. Before leaving Europe he made a stipulation that he be furnished with a carriage to and from the opera house every night. This was inserted in the contract.

When he arrived he found a carriage waiting at the pier. He rode uptown—always at the expense of the opera company—and took a look around. Then he decided to put up at the Marlborough hotel, which happened to be only three short blocks from the Metropolitan Opera House. Every time he sang he walked up to the opera house, refusing to take a carriage. He said he had just as soon walk. When it came time for him to return to Europe he presented a bill for over $200 "for carriages to and from the opera."

"But you didn't take a carriage," said the manager of the opera company.

Tamagno bowed low and invited the manager to look at the contract. He repeated the same suggestion whenever anything was said about it. "The result, of course, was that the $200 had to be paid. He stood out for it with as much insistence as if he hadn't seen a dollar for a month, and all the time he was getting $1,000 a night.

A Bright Shine for Nickel Plate.

Most substances professing to keep plated ware in bright, shiny condition contain harsh, gritty substances which scratch the nickel and silver plate. Warm acids of Gold Dust washing powder and water will, however, clean these fixtures thoroughly and safely. When dim, rub a little of the Gold Dust directly on the surface, rinse and rub dry with a piece of soft linen or flannel. Nickel, lightly washed each week in Gold Dust and water, and wiped with a soft cloth, will never get dull or need hard rubbing.

COMMON SENSE CURE FOR RHEUMATISM.

Rheumatism "has" for ages been a puzzle to the doctors. Some claim it to be an infection, a germ disease. Others claim that the cause is uric acid, a kidney disease. It is said that uric acid is carried by the blood into the small apertures of the joints and skin where it crystallizes and it is the small, sharp crystals that cause intense pain with every motion of the body by cutting into the flesh and nerves. Whatever the cause, the best relief known is an Alkaline Elixer of the Sallaylates. The chemical nature of the Sallaylates is to form soluble compounds with the urates. In this way these crystals are dissolved, taken up by the blood and taken out of the body by the kidneys.

This rheumatic elixer is taken in teaspoonful doses in hot water before meals. The cure is often in a day or two, yet the remedy should be taken for some time to thoroughly neutralize the blood and prevent a recurrence of the trouble. The elimination, as the doctors would say, that is the kidneys and the bowels, should be kept active. Rheumatic Elixer is compounded by Mr. Fennig, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, who would be pleased to give you any other information you wish. Sold at E. C. Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River St., the drug store that makes a specialty of drugs.

Lord Loveland Discovers America

CHAPTER VI.

FOXHAM REVISITED.

LOVELAND tried to put thoughts of the girl out of his head as he drove through the exciting streets of New York, which seemed to him colorful and strange as a vast flower garden seen regardlessly. But, despite the rush and roar of "elevated trains" above his head, the swift whirl of electric trains to left, to right of him on a level and the bizarre effect of the skyscrapers, which turned long thoroughfares into shadowed valleys, he could not throw open his mind to the rush of new impressions. This brilliant New York made him feel, after all, a person of comparatively small importance.

Loveland had heard of the Waldorf-Astoria. Men he knew who ran over to New York on such errands as his own stopped at the Waldorf-Astoria or Holland House or the Plaza, and Val, who believed that the best was only just good enough, would not risk hiding his light under a bushel. True, he had very little money, but he had plenty of invitations and was certain to have more. A couple of days at the most expensive hotel could not break him, and Jim and Betty Harbrough's millionaire friends would probably expect him to be conspicuous.

Loveland's intention had been to ask for a small room, high in situation and low in price, but once inside the immense red brown building, which looked vast enough to hold half New York, pride tied his tongue. Pretty girls, beautifully dressed, and prosperous-looking men, with facial expressions as supercilious as his own, were standing within earshot, and Loveland could not resist an impulse of boyish vanity. He announced to a superior gentleman at a desk that he wanted a good room with a bath. His charming voice and "English accent" attracted the Americans near him, and under his mask of indifference Loveland was aware of the attention he excited.

The superior gentleman thought for a moment and consulted a book. Then he said that he had no single rooms with baths disengaged at present, but that there was a suite consisting of bedroom, bath and parlor, just one suite, and that probably would be gone in another minute.

The hint of rivalry decided Loveland. "Very well; I will take it," he said. "Here's my card, if you wish to know to whom you are letting your rooms." He went on haughtily in response to a sharp glance from a crowd, experienced eyes. And the hotel clerk read aloud, "Marquis of Loveland."

At this every one who had been staring at the handsome, arrogant young Englishman began to stare, and Loveland was not displeased.

"My luggage will be here soon, I hope," he said, showing several metal disks about which his ideas were rather vague. The clerk answered civilly that the trunk ought to arrive in half an hour or so, and a smart youth in livery was told off to show Lord Loveland his rooms.

They were very luxurious rooms, almost too luxurious, and Loveland experienced a faint quail as it occurred to him that he had neglected to ask the price. "But they can't come to more than five or six pounds a day at the worst," he thought hopefully.

He had brought his suit case in the cab, and as the letters of introduction were in a little portable writing desk contained among the fittings he got out the packet to read over the addresses. All the friends to whom Jim and Betty were commending him lived in New York, and Cadwallader Hunter had said that most New Yorkers were at home in November.

Loveland was just deciding that the letters had better reach their destination before night when his baggage appeared. Loveland touched an electric bell in his bedroom, demanded of an unexpectedly responsive telephone that the hotel should produce a valet and criticized the product adversely when it came.

Lunchtime was near, and Val was hungry, but he would not leave wardrobe and jewelry to the discretion of a strange servant. In a mood swinging toward impatience he sat down on a cushioned sofa to watch the valet's proceedings.

The larger of the two noble portmanteaus was opened, the neat square of gold braided and coroneted brown velvet with which Foxham always covered the contents of each box was removed, and a pile of clothing was deftly excavated.

Loveland's face changed from attention to surprise, then to bewilderment. "My love," he exclaimed, "those don't look like my things!" Then, springing up alertly, he began to toss over the pile as the hotel valet deposited it upon the bed, to toss it over as a hasty maker tosses hay. But in the midst he drew back his hand as if he had inadvertently touched pitch. "Jove!" he stammered again.

"Wrong luggage, sir?" ventured the servant.

Loveland did not reply. He did not even hear, for his thoughts had taken a trip of record quickness across the sea and were already in London chasing a mystery. But if the valet had stopped to think an answer would have been unnecessary. The keys fitted the portmanteaus, and there were the big luffels and the small coronets which distinguished Lord Loveland's property from the vulgar trunks of the common herd.

Had Foxham gone mad? For the moment Loveland could think of no other explanation. The portmanteau was filled with discarded garments, many of which Loveland had given to Foxham at parting. Other things were there, too, which Val dimly remembered having actually seen on the person of Foxham, and it was from the touch of these contaminated remnants that he recoiled in disgust.

"Open the other portmanteau," he directed, flushed now and anxious eyed.

The hotel servant obeyed. Another neat square of brown velvet was whisked away, and piles of shirts were revealed, but save for a deceitful top layer they were not Loveland's shirts. They might have been bought ready made in the Edgemoor road—probably had been—by Foxham. There was underclothing also, but not the pale pink, blue and heliotrope silk variety affected by Foxham's master.

"Now the hatbox," Loveland went on, almost sure that he was talking in his sleep.

There were hats in the hatbox—Foxham's hats, perhaps, certainly not Lord Loveland's. And in the boot box, which came next, were boots which even Foxham would have found it difficult to give away.

Only the custom house official's good nature and haste and Loveland's complete absence of mind on the dock had delayed discovery until this moment, but now that the secret was out there seemed nothing to do if not to rage helplessly.

Loveland spluttered a few colorful words, but was still too bewildered by the catastrophe to become volcanic. The eruption would follow later.

"What shall I do with the things, sir?" the valet wanted to know.

"Do with them?" repeated Loveland, exasperated by the creature's calmness. "Pitch 'em into the fire, get rid of them anyhow, out of my sight, and be quick about it. I've been robbed by my own man."

No wonder Foxham had not asked for vengeance in arrears. No wonder he suddenly developed a defiant grandeur with an eccentric will. From the moment he heard of the proposed trip to America he must have been quietly planning this coup, a coup worth making for the sake of the brand new wardrobe, to say nothing of the jewelry. And, hot with rage, Loveland ran over in his mind the contents of that missing jewel box, the pearl studs which Lady Kitty Manning had given him on his last birthday, each one of the three worth £50 if it was worth a shilling. How he wished he had sold the things, as he had been tempted to do and would have done if they had not been the gift of a pretty woman! The diamond and enamel sleeve links, too, and the sapphire buttons—a hundred pounds more in Foxham's pocket; then the corset pins in two long rows on a white velvet bag; ground. Loveland could see them as he had seen them last—a cherished collection representing not only so many golden sovereigns, but so many queens of beauty, the charming givers.

What a rogue to send his master off to a strange country stripped practically naked, and how the master longed to have the rogue within kicking distance instead of safe across the sea! How was he to fight on the tilting ground of society and bear away a millionaires when his sole possessions consisted of what he stood up in and the contents of a suit case and a cabin trunk?

Luckily Foxham had not been able to annex his master's letter of credit, but Val had used for the hundred and fifty pounds other than buying a new outfit. How he wished now that he had not played bridge quite so often on board ship, emptying his pockets of spare cash! The scrape he was in was as hard to win out of as a black London fog, and while groping for light a mild question from the hotel valet did not sweeten his temper.

"Am I really to carry all these things away, sir?"

"Oh, go to the devil and take them with you!"

The servant bolted toward safety with a leading tower of Foxham's garments on his arm. It was nobody's business how he meant to dispose of them, and a second later he would have passed the danger line had not a page boy selected that identical instant to knock at Lord Loveland's door.

Man and youth collided. The top heavy pile of clothing crumbled into ruin. Foxham's lathered shirts and waistcoats blotting out the threshold. What the valet said long habits of servitude rendered inaudible, but what Loveland said might have been heard at the end of the corridor. And there were listeners nearer—Major Cadwallader Hunter and a companion who "represented" one of New York's leading newspapers.

Major Cadwallader Hunter had been somewhat doubtful of his wisdom in paying this uninvited call. He had liked that he might drop in at the hotel to see how Lord Loveland got on and had not been encouraged to do so. But Tony Kidd of the New York Light was a pretty good excuse for persevering, and he certainly had been badly in want of an excuse.

The journalist, sent down by his paper to meet the Marquis, had just exhausted the available supply of homecoming millinery when he spied Major Cadwallader Hunter and carefully called him by the way as worth a short paragraph at the bottom of a column.

Cadwallader Hunter was glad of a paragraph anywhere, but thought he saw his way to one higher up, perhaps even with a headline. So he happened to mention "a connection of his," the Marquis of Loveland, who had been on board, though for reasons the noble name did not appear on the passenger list, and Mr. Kidd took the bait. Loveland was described by his alleged cousin as a "dear boy," so handsome, so clever, one of the oldest peers in England, etc., in the Grenadier guards, don't you know, and all that sort of thing; had gone on ahead to secure rooms at the Waldorf-Astoria, though invitations had been showered upon him by the best people on board ship. As soon as he could escape with life and luggage Cadwallader Hunter intended to pay a friendly call and inspect Lord Loveland's new quarters.

Of course Mr. Kidd wanted to call, too, and get a "story" for his paper. But at this suggestion the bear leader shook his head. Charming fellow as Loveland was when you knew him, he was rather a difficult man to approach and had some ridiculous prejudice against American pressmen. Certainly, unless influence were brought to bear, he would refuse to see Mr. Kidd. But Cadwallader Hunter would like to do the Light a good turn and give the paper a chance for a "scoop." He would take Mr. Kidd under his wing and use his persuasive powers to obtain some sort of interview.

When, arriving at the hotel, he had talked for a few minutes with pleasant conversation to a hotel clerk his self esteem was so roused that he no longer dreaded a cold reception. Nor did he receive one. His welcome was, on the contrary, far warmer than he had expected, and the hot blast of Loveland's wrath swept him back a step or two, so that he trod hard upon Tony Kidd's most pampered toe.

A difficult young man to approach, indeed.

The representative of the New York Light was a brilliant journalist with a keen sense of humor, and a headline jumped into his head as Cadwallader Hunter stamped upon his toe—"A Difficult Young Man to Approach." He thought he saw his way to something rather choice for tomorrow morning's Light.

Somehow between valet and page the wild litter of shirts, trousers, boots and other horrors reminiscent of Foxham was rebuilt into a tower more leaning than before. Then, while the valet scuttled away with his trailing, sliding load, the page remained behind and courageously announced the visitors.

Perhaps if Foxham had spared him a few of his favorite tie pins or if the blow of his loss had not caught him on an empty stomach Loveland might have seen the humor of the situation as Tony Kidd saw it. But everything was against him in a black world, and his late shipmate's intrusion with a stranger was the one last drop in a bitter cup which he refused to swallow.

Never had Cadwallader Hunter's handsome bear looked less handsome or more dangerous than he looked as he stood blocking the way to his den, at bay against fate and against his leader.

"Upset me?" echoed Val, glaring blue fire so vindictively that Kidd expected his introduction to be the next one "upset." "My d— valet has stolen all my clothes and made me a present of his own; that's all."

Taxed.
The schoolboy whips his taxed top; the headless youth mingles his taxed horse with a taxed bridle on a taxed road; and the dyking Englishman, pouring his medicine, which has paid seven per cent, into a spoon that has paid 15 per cent, dings himself back upon his chintz bed which has paid 22 per cent, and expires in the arms of an apothecary who has paid a license of a hundred pounds for the privilege of putting him to death.—Sydney Smith.

Comparison for Misfortune.
Never repine at misfortune, or envy the happiness of another, since it is impossible for any man to form a right judgment of his neighbor's sufferings; for which reason determine never to think too lightly of another's complaints, but regard the sorrows of one's fellow-creatures with sentiments of humanity and compassion.—Addison.

The Unhonored Worthy.
The growing good of the world is partly dependent on unhistoric acts, and that things are not so ill with you and me as they might have been is half owing to the number who lived faithfully a hidden life and rest in unvisited tombs.—George Eliot.

Try a Laxative Cough Syrup.

Make It Yourself.

If you have been going all winter with a troublesome weakening cough, without obtaining relief or cure from the numerous old time out of date cough mixtures, then you should try making at home a cough syrup that has a laxative, cleansing and tonic action.

Secure Menthyl-Laxative when made into syrup, quickly relieves the most chronic coughs, and cures on the lungs of old or young, and not only that, but it has a most decided curative action so that almost any chronic case may be cured in a week or two. Buy of your druggist a 25¢ oz. package of secure menthyl-laxative, containing full directions for making a pint of laxative cough syrup very easily at home.

You make a syrup of granulated sugar. Here is the formula:
Secure menthyl-laxative . . . 2 1/2 ozs.
Granulated sugar syrup . . . 1 1/4 ozs.
It makes the sweetest cough remedy known for old people and children like it so well, too.

It not only quickly loosens the tightest cough, but it drives the cold out of the system and cures by its tonic and laxative action.

You can save $2 to $4 by making it at home cheaply, as a pint lasts a family a long time.

—Jottings.—The report of the committee which investigated the Harris Manufacturing Company justifies all that has been said regarding the standing and prosperity of the company, and commends the enterprise to our business men and capitalists. The fact, however, that Mr. Harris commenced business here with little capital and has succeeded in putting his establishment on such a basis as to induce men of means to invest in it will he has brought the capital stock to over one hundred thousand dollars and that others who have investigated the business are preparing to add to it, shows that it needs but to be examined to command the necessary means. The meeting at the common council room tomorrow evening ought to be attended by every business man in the city. It is not expected that all who attend can furnish money, but it is desirable we give this effort our united support, and aid whenever it is possible.

Mr. Thos. Thornton has renewed his Milwaukee road contract, the mild weather of the past few days inducing the hope that he will be able to finish the job this fall.

Mr. John Enders, of Bradford, was killed by a colt while riding another horse on Friday last, and died on Saturday night from the effects of the injury received. Mr. Enders was highly esteemed in the community where he lived.

Sickness in the family of D. W. Hall has compelled him to make some changes in his business, and he has sold his interest in the firm of Dearborn and Hall to his brother, Mr. P. M. Hall, who will continue the business with Mr. Dearborn, the firm retaining the name. Mr. Hall goes east to spend a few months with his family, who left here some weeks since. The failing health of Mrs. Hall has for some time admonished them to try a change of climate and they go east hoping medicinal waters and the pure atmosphere of New England may benefit her. Our best wishes follow them and we hope they may realize their brightest expectations and return to us in the spring with renewed health.

KNOWS FAMILY AS IT IS Takes Servant Girl to Be Really Intimate With Members of Household.
 Sometimes I feel as if no other folk on earth had quite as good a chance to know all the kinds of people on it as servant girls. Maybe policemen do —they're always going into unexpected places, an' see'n' folks in what Miss Lena, which was the fourth from the last place I lived, called dishabill'.
 It means not fixed up to receive company, with the parlor dusted, an' the lamps alled, an' high-heeled slippers an' silk stockings on, an' hair waved, but just bein' caught in your old shirtwaist with no collar, an' your shoes down at the heel, an' quarrell' with your mother about something. But, of course, you'd know what dishabill' meant without my tellin' you.
 Not even a policeman, though, sees the dishabilled people the way we servants do. He comes when there's trouble an' everything is excitement, an' he can't tell whether they skip on family dinners so as to have a caterer for company ones, or whether their underclothes are the cheapest things from the bargain counters so as they can spend more money on the outside ones. It takes a servant girl to be really intimate with all the little ways of a family, an' sometimes it's so interestin', ma'am, that you're half inclined to think you'd stay a servant girl all your life, just for the free entertainment you get, an' then again, you feel so tired of it that you'd jump off the pier if you thought you'd have to spend many more days in other people's kitchens.—Smith's Magazine.

Her Anxiety.
 "She grieved sincerely over his business failure,"
 "What! After the way he abused her and drove her to the divorce court?"
 "Yes, after all that."
 "Well, what in the world is the woman thinking of?"
 "Her alimony."

Origin of the Turban. The origin of the turban must be looked for not, as commonly believed, among Moors, but as a sign of authority and honor dating back to the earliest periods of Jewish history. The term used in the Hebrew Bible for putting on the bonnet of the high priest is from a root meaning "to bind round." The words mitre, hood, diadem, as used in the Old Testament, are only variations of the word turban. Jerome tells us that the turban has a place in the most ancient records of history. The variations as adopted by Mohammedans are many. Their own authorities hint at a thousand methods of arranging the turban, which show not only the tribe and religious distinction, but even the personal peculiarities of the wearer. An old legend traces the turban to an act of desperate courage recorded of the ancient Lyonesse. A brave band of warriors are said to have wrapped their winding sheets round their heads as they devoted themselves to certain death to save their comrades on the battlefield.

The Judge's Crime.
A prisoner, a faded, bittered specimen of mankind, on whose haggard face, deeply lined with the marks of dissipation, there still lingered faint reminders of better days long past, stood dejected before a New York police judge. "Where are you from?" asked the magistrate. "From Boston," answered the accused. "Indeed," said the judge—"indeed, yours is a sad face, and yet you don't seem to thoroughly realize how low you have sunk." The man started as if struck. "Your honor does me an injustice," he said bitterly. "The disgrace of arrest for drunkenness, the mortification of being thrust into a noisome dungeon, the publicity and humiliation of trial in a crowded and dingy courtroom I can bear, but to be sentenced by a police magistrate who splits his indignities—that is indeed the last blow."—"New York World.

Useless.
 "I see your son has a liking for jewelry—wears a couple of rings and a lot of other things made of gold and precious stones."
 "Yes. What about it? They're all paid for."
 "Oh, I merely intended to sympathize with you."
 "Did you suppose I couldn't afford to buy such jewelry, as my son cared to wear?"
 "No, that wasn't it. If you don't understand why a man whose son loads himself down with jewelry ought to be sympathized with it will be useless for me to do any explaining."
 —Chicago Record-Herald.

The Christian's Privilege.
The great master hand sends the thoughts of sorrow, of joy, of strength, into our life in varying forms as mighty means under the Spirit's power, to mold and bring us into the Divine image, for "to stand by the side of Jesus Christ and look upon life and its possibilities is to behold a vision of marvellous beauty." It is this ever-deepening vision of life that is the Christian's privilege as he walks by the side of his Master and touches the hand which is molding his life into the highest beauty. Though earth is dark, in His presence it is always day.

Church Work.
Present-day church work is to minister to all needs of men every day in the week the year round.—Rev. W. A. Barlett, Congregationalist, Chicago.

Debatable.

A certain debating society is discussing the question as to which is the angrier, the husband who goes home and finds that the dinner is not ready, or the wife who has dinner ready and whose husband does not come home? It is believed that the debate will end in a draw.

A collage of five early aircraft, each in its own tilted rectangular frame. The frames are arranged in a circular pattern around a central point. The aircraft shown are: Wright Biplane (top left), Zeppelin Dirigible (top right), Voisin Biplane (middle left), French Army Dirigible (middle right), and Blériot Monoplane (bottom). Each frame has a small square icon in the top right corner, possibly representing a camera or a light source. The background is dark and textured.

Unpardonable.

"I was so sorry to hear that your husband is ill," said the caller. "Yes," was the reply, "it was really too bad. He took such a liking to a new kind of health food that he overate him- self."

A black and white illustration of a traditional Chinese desk or table. The desk has a rectangular top with a slightly raised edge. The front and side panels are decorated with intricate carvings, possibly of floral or geometric patterns. The base is supported by four legs, with the front legs featuring a lattice or screen-like structure. The overall style is that of a traditional Chinese woodblock print.

All materials, light or heavy, are worked up with results that show the perfection of the Eldredge Rotary construction. The softest sheer fabrics are sewn without the least puckering or drawing.

We would like to show every woman this one strong feature of the new Rotary. It is the lightest running machine made—runs smoothly and evenly at high speed with the least effort.
